

LIF – A peer learning forum for Christian academics & professionals

Vision LIF began in 2015 to develop a HK-based network of Christian academics and professionals with a vision for faith-learning integration to engage society and culture.

Mission To meet the challenge of our times, Christians need to thoughtfully articulate the biblical worldview as we contribute to a moral and intellectual order in contemporary Chinese and Asian context for the common good of this generation.

Objective Local faculty development is our objective. We need a united witness in academia. With integrity, compassion, humility and boldness, we seek to demonstrate that our faith and values are relevant to contemporary issues.

Distinctive LIF will not offer “standard” and “politically correct” answers to complex questions in our time. As speakers and responders explore difficult issues in peer learning forums, they grow through reflection and interaction.

Our World With rapid socioeconomic changes and postmodernism impacting all spheres of life, Greater China and Asia are facing issues that challenge the resources of their traditional philosophies and religions. We strive for prayerful scholarship and intelligent faith to meet the needs of our time.

Our Prayer Faculty members from diverse academic backgrounds make up the LIF committees at seven HK campuses. We hope to become a prayer movement as it is not by might, nor by power, academic credentials or diligent networking that we could accomplish spiritual impact.
